Children's Fairyland, a decidedly low-tech 50-year tradition, allows kids to expand their imaginations, not just bear witness to entertainment

The final scene of the puppet show "Billy Goats Gruff" is but one example of "slow entertainment" at Children's Fairyland.
